TASTE OF OLD-TIME CLASSICS AT THE STATE OF FUN

New dining concept in the heart of Sentosa offers halal and affordable local cuisine for visitors to the resort island

SINGAPORE, 31 MARCH 2016 – There is nothing quite as familiar and comforting as the taste of wok-hei in Beef Hor Fun, the fragrance of Nasi Biryani and the appetising sight of you tiao tossed in thick Rojak sauce. Good Old Days, a new dining experience serving up these traditional favourites and more, recently opened its doors on Singapore’s most popular island destination, offering beach-goers, families and tourists an eclectic selection of tantalising local flavours and comfort food while they have their fun on Sentosa.

Good Old Days is conveniently located at Sentosa’s Beach Station, providing easy access to guests enjoying the island’s array of attractions. Not only does the semi-service restaurant serve value-for-money and halal food in a casual ambience, the dishes also come in portions big enough for sharing, making it a perfect option for families.

“Here at Good Old Days, we take pride in preparing dishes that maintain the authentic taste of traditional local cuisine. The Beef Hor Fun, for example, is cooked in a well-seasoned wok, providing the familiar wok-hei taste which we usually get from our favourite hawkers. Also, the masala chicken in our Chicken Biryani is prepared with different spices and achar, poppodum and homemade cucumber raita, creating a rich curry that is served with biryani rice cooked in a traditional oven to bring out the fragrance. The lotus leaves in our Glutinous Rice, too, go beyond creating an appealing presentation as they are carefully steamed to perfection for that added flavour,” explained Executive Chef Kenneth Francisco of Sentosa Leisure Management.

Good Old Days provides ala carte and buffet options to choose from – offering a variety of delightful dishes familiar to locals and a must-try for tourists. Another favourite not to be missed is the classic Singapore Chicken Rice– succulent chicken served with steamed fragrant rice, vegetables with oyster sauce and cabbage soup. Alternatively, order a plate of traditional Rojak to share with the family.

Of course, a meal is not complete without desserts. Grab a bowl of ice cold Chendol to beat the heat or opt for Cheng Tng if you prefer a lighter taste. For just a top-up of $4.50, you can enjoy a dessert and drink alongside your selected main dish.

For families visiting the island, Kids’ Meals are available too for the young ones. Each set comes with a drink and fruit jelly, and a choice of Beef Noodle Soup, Singapore Chicken Rice or Hainanese Chicken Cutlet with Fries.

The restaurant also caters to vegetarians with a special North Indian Vegetarian Set which includes biryani rice with a variety of sides such as cottage cheese gravy, split lentils and vegetable curd served in traditional tin bowls.

Feeling a little peckish in the afternoon? Refuel with value-for-money Teatime sets before you continue with your activities on The State of Fun. Think Punjabi Samosa, Siew Mai, Glutinous Rice with Chicken Sausage or mini Chicken Char Siew Pau with coffee or tea.

The semi-service restaurant makes dining more convenient for all patrons – simply pen down your preferences on the order chit and make your way to the counter where you will be served your drinks first while the order is being sent to the kitchen. This fuss-free experience allows you to enjoy the ambience while the food is being prepared, and the friendly servers will bring your orders to your table in no time.

If you are feeling famished after an active day on the island, why not indulge in an all-you-can-eat buffet at a special opening offer of just $20 nett (adults) and $15 nett (child) from now till 30 June 2016? Starting from 5pm, the first level of the restaurant provides the buffet service, offering a variety of scrumptious local dishes, perfect for indulgent feasting. At affordable and value-for-money prices, families and friends can enjoy the delectable spread without worrying about the bill.

Settle down at the colonial-themed bungalow and relive your fondest, nostalgic days. The double-storey restaurant with timeless black and white design exudes an old-school charm that will take you down memory lane. With a spacious setting and a total capacity of 260 seats, you can comfortably savour an array of *shio*k old-time classics like how you have always enjoyed your favourite hawker dishes.

Whether you are heading to Palawan beach for a picnic with some friends or strolling at the Merlion Plaza with the little ones, be sure to stop by Good Old Days to get a taste of old-time classics!
